Harvey Nash becomes the first recruitment company in the world to launch iPad application

Recruitment group takes another step in becoming a leading digital innovator

Brussels, 22 april 2010 – Harvey Nash, the global professional recruitment consultancy and IT outsourcing service provider, announces the launch of a special application for Apple's ground breaking mobile device, the iPad. The application contains an online vacancy magazine and information about career management. One of a small number of applications that Apple pre-approved for the iPad's launch, this is the latest development in the strategy of Harvey Nash of becoming the leading digital innovator in the recruitment industry.

Ronny Lommelen, managing director Harvey Nash Belux, commented: "The strength of Harvey Nash has always been to be as close as possible with its employees, clients and candidates. In today's market this is happening more and more often via social websites, mobile devices or beyond. We are not just in this business to find the ideal candidates for the vacancies of our clients, but also to give advice and find solutions towards the market. It is within our digital strategy that we continue to share our knowledge and expertise with our candidates and clients via tools such as the iPad."
